The Investor acknowledges that the Shares are retractable by the Investor after a period of 12 months following the last day of the fiscal quarter of the Company in which the Shares being exercised for retraction (the "Retraction Shares") were issued. Such retraction shall be effective (the "Effective Date") as follows:

- (a) for Retraction Shares for which a notice of retraction (a "Retraction Notice") is received by the Company on or before January 31st, the Effective Date shall be the following March 31st;

If the Investor does not deliver a Retraction Notice to the Company at least 60 days before the applicable Anniversary, then the right of retraction by the Investor shall lapse and the Share shall not be retractable by the Investor except in connection with the next following Anniversary.

Shares for which Retraction Notices have been received and which have not been redeemed on the Initial Retraction Date shall be redeemed in the Company's next fiscal quarter in which Retraction Notices received equal less than the Retraction Limits and will be redeemed in priority to subsequent retraction requests.

The amount paid by the Company in respect of each Share for which it properly receives a Retraction Notice (the Retraction Price) shall be the amount equal to the paid up capital of the Share plus any dividends then declared and payable but not yet paid on such Share less the Share's pro rata proportion of any deficit in the Company at the Effective Date.

You are buying Exempt Market Securities

They are called exempt market securities because two parts of securities law do not apply to them. If an issuer wants to sell exempt market securities to you:

- the issuer does not have to give you a prospectus (a document that describes the investment in detail and gives you some legal protections), and
- the securities do not have to be sold by an investment dealer registered with a securities regulatory authority or regulator.

There are restrictions on your ability to resell exempt market securities. Exempt market securities are more risky than other securities.

You will receive an offering memorandum

Read the offering memorandum carefully because it has important information about the issuer and its securities. Keep the offering memorandum because you have rights based on it. Talk to a lawyer for details about these rights.

The securities you are buying are not listed

The securities you are buying are not listed on any stock exchange, and they may never be listed. You may never be able to sell these securities.

The issuer of your securities is a non-reporting issuer

A non-reporting issuer does not have to publish financial information or notify the public of changes in its business. You may not receive ongoing information about this issuer.

For more information on the exempt market, call your local securities regulatory authority or regulator.
